HOW CAN THE GLOBAL CONVERGENCE OF INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATIONS TECHNOLOGY BE MADE AVAILABLE FOR EVERYONE?

Ganguly, Tomal K., University of Liechtenstein, Fürst-Franz-Josef-Strasse, 9490 Vaduz, Principality of Liechtenstein, tomal.ganguly@uni.li

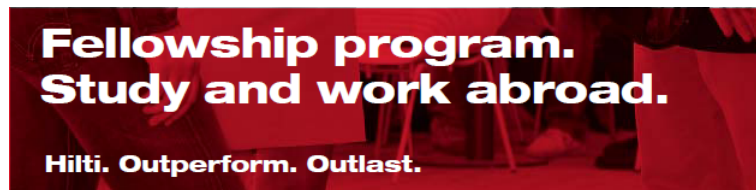

Fleerkötter, Klaus, University of Münster, European Research Center for Information Systems, Leonardo Campus 3, 48149 Münster, Germany, fleerkoetter@uni-muenster.de

Over 2 billion internet users, 5 billion mobile phones and billions of hardware are communicating in a real-time multi-network. Due to this, new civilizations will develop in the future in the sense of minds, information and technology throughout the world. As the world is growing together and technology is developing, the questions arise how the global convergence of information and communication technologies can be made available for everyone, what the opportunities are, where the threats and requirements arise from and which technological developments are able to realize the process. The authors give an insight by introducing a conceptualization model of the topic and literature review focusing on different areas by considering aspects of IT, politics, law and socio-culture.
